

MapQuest® Advantage™ API 5.1

Increase Productivity and Enhance End-User Experience with MapQuest's APIs

Through an array of APIs, MapQuest offers the reliability of a robust geospatial platform with the flexibility and efficiency of a web service, allowing companies to location-enable web and wireless applications.

Advantage™ API, a comprehensive developer's toolkit, offers ease of implementation, feature richness, and superb technical support.

MapQuest's recently updated service, Advantage™ API 5.1, provides 16+ million Points of Interest that can be licensed to enrich any application, as well as several key JavaScript™ enhancements to make applications even more compelling and easier to use.

New Enhancements for the JavaScript™ environment

With the new 5.1 release, developers receive all the benefits of API 5.0 – ease of use, rich interactive maps, drag and pan interface, aerial and hybrid imagery, geocoding, mapping, routing, intelligent search, geographic coverage - and the reliability of the MapQuest® platform including the new JavaScript™ enhancements which include:

- Advanced Overlays: Robust capability to create and interact with custom lines and shapes such as polygons, rectangles and ellipses. These overlays can then be used to create custom search areas and allows the user to define the geographic search area right on the map.
- Icon Decluster: For times when a map view contains map icons overlapping each other, decluttering moves those icons away from each other and allows distribution in a selected style.

With the enhanced tool sets, end users will be able to more easily define search areas, cleanly see high-density POIs, define specific searches and much more.
